

CATALAN PHILOLOGY: LANGUAGE

Coordinator: Joan Martí i Castell

Professor of the Department of Catalan Philology at the Rovira i Virgili University.

Member of the Institute for Catalan Studies' Philological Division.

E-mail: jmc@fl.urv.es

Summary

This report presents a study of Catalan language research carried out in Catalonia for the period 1996–2002. The frameworks of the different civil services that promote research are reviewed, as are the different institutional resources for research (university departments and institutions, research groups, research programs, topic networks, etc.). Regarding human resources, the data concerning the number of university professors and investigators in the different research groups, scholarships, aid given to visiting investigators, aid for the reintegration of PhDs, etc., are provided. Moreover, details of granted research projects are given, and reference to other sources of financing is made, such as aid targeted at research and infrastructure, special programs, aid to support the consolidation of research groups, and contracts and agreements. Output and the results obtained are discussed in terms of the degree of development of the different research projects and programs, the number of theses, dissertations, books and book chapters published, and the number of scholarly articles appearing in specialized journals and as contributions to congresses. There is also an analysis of the standards of the journals in which each group publishes its research results, the type of contributions for congresses, and the sections of those congresses in which the groups have participated. The report finishes with some conclusions that denounce the marginalization of Catalan philology.

Key words

Catalan dialectics; Historical Catalan grammar; History of Catalan language; Historical Catalan lexicon; Catalan onomastics

Full text

<http://www.iecat.net/recerca/reports/Publicats2Edicio/Rep\_16\_Filolo-lleng.pdf>